Subject: R. J. Corman Reaches 1000 Employees

R. J. Corman Railroad Group, LLC reached a milestone in September of one thousand employees. The honor of employee number one thousand goes to Faith Hillard, a Junior Accountant with R. J. Corman Railroad Construction, LLC based in Nicholasville. Faith joined the company in September and commutes from Lexington. She grew up in Manchester, Ohio and graduated from Eastern Kentucky University earning a Bachelor of Business Administration in Accounting. “I was surprised and excited to hear that I was the 1000th employee of such a prestigious and dynamic company, and I am honored to be a part of the R. J. Corman Team. I am really looking forward to new challenges and learning more about the railroad industry.” Faith said.

The Construction Company performs service related specialty work such as continuous welded rail installation and flash butt welding. “It’s no surprise that our 1,000th hire was right here in Nicholasville, Kentucky,” says John Maxwell, Vice President of People Services at R. J. Corman Railroad Group. “We employ nearly half of our employees in the state of Kentucky.”

R. J. Corman is highly regarded as an employer of choice in the industry and areas it serves. “With a reputation for excellence and growth, people want to be a part of the R. J. Corman Team”, Maxwell said.

R. J. Corman has doubled employment since 2002 and has grown by 25% since 2008. The company surpassed five hundred employees in 2002 and has steadily grown ever since. Currently, the company operates facilities in twenty-two states.
